UK Outlook for Wednesday 1 Dec 2021 to Wednesday 15 Dec 2021:
A westerly to northerly airflow looks set to continue for much of this period, with the most changeable conditions likely to be in the north of the UK. Showers or longer spells of rain and possibly strong winds are likely across the north, these interspersed with periods of more settled weather. In the south high pressure is likely to remain close by, giving a good deal of settled and dry weather. Overnight frost and fog is likely, with the fog often slow to clear given the time of year.
